1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

It is noted that applicant, in their "Remarks/Arguments" accompanying the November 16, 2005 Amendment, argues that the primary reference to Johnson et al '921 fails to teach the formation of the filter cake "comprising solid base-soluble material functioning on the basis of pH", however it is further noted that applicant's claims, such as independent claims 1, 17 and/or 26, do not include such limitation in its entirety. These claims, instead, generically call for "degrading" the solid base-soluble material "with a solid base-soluble material degradation agent while injecting" the slurry of proppant or gravel. Johnson et al, in col. 9, lines 14-29, appears, in one embodiment, to form a filter cake comprising a base-soluble material, such as polyglycolic acid (PGA), which subsequently "could be converted to a liquid by degradation at the appropriate temperature" or degraded by "converting the filter cake solid to particles small enough to be solubilized". Such intended removal of the filter cake in Johnson et al, however, is deemed insufficiently specific and/or falls short of encompassing applicant's noted step of "degrading ... with a solid base-soluble material degradation agent while injecting" the slurry of proppant or gravel, i.e., corresponding to step b) of independent claims 1 and 16, and step c) of independent claim 17.

It is further noted, in applicant's RESPONSE TO OFFICE ACTION dated February 17, 2006, it was asserted that the objection to the specification should be removed because the specification refers to Figure 1 "on page 24". The objection has been withdrawn, and thus the case can be passed for issue, however, the said recitation appears in page 50 of the specification (11/14/2003 entry in the IFW file), rather than page 24.
